Wolfsie is going for a clean sweep

DICK WOLFSIE

The other day, I re-The other day, I received something interesting in the mail. It wasn't an exotic postcard from Maui; it was a thank-you note for a recent purchase
I had made.
Dear Mr. Wolfsie,
Thank you for buying a new Oreck. We hope it brings you many years of vacuuming pleasure. Please call us about host-ing an Oreck party today. Your friendly Oreck sales team

The truth is that I don't have any intentions of spending a single enjoy-able moment with my vacuum. I was a bachelor until I was 33 years old and I managed to maintain a very active social life without hovering over a Hoover or dallying with a Dirt Devil. In addition, I have always felt there is a Dirt Devil. In addition, I have always felt there is something very frightening about vacuum cleaners. Every dog I have ever owned agrees. It was a friendly gesture by Oreck, to be sure. But I have no recollection of a similar follow-up after the Wolfsies bought our new sump pump. And I've gone through all my previous correspondence and no one cared a whit whether I had a positive experience with our document shredder. As a general rule, I don't want annoying phone calls and letters asking me if I'm a satisfied customer. If I have a garbage disposal that is not disposing, the load of goop in my stak is a good indication that I'm not happy with my purchase. I'll take it from there.

I recently had some issues with my Internet connection. The cable company called me the next day to ask if I would rate the service I was pro-vided. "I would be happy to do that," I told the

to do that, "I told the caller, "provided someone finally shows up."

Now, let's talk about that Oreck get-together. My wife and I are not big on "entertaining," the term my mother used for dimer parties when I was growing up. As a kid, I kept waiting for Mom to break into song when the guests arrived and for my father to commence a little soft shoe.

father to commence a little soft shoe.

But what about a vacuum cleaner bash? I'm not usually at a loss for words, but I'd be stuck for snappy conversation while guests clustered around the artichoke dip. I took a speech class in college and once class in college and once spoke off-the-cuff for 15 minutes on the topic "Life Before Rubber Bands."

group with some of your favorite moments."
"It's hard to pick our favorites. The night the bag of Fritos fell on the lag of Fritos fell on the lag of the favorites. The night was unforgetable. We loved it last week when the cat shredded the down pillow. But Mary Ellen has a special place in her heart for Christmas Eve when the tree toppled over and pine needles were all over the living room floor." I think Mary Ellen and I will take a pass on hosting will take a pass on hosting

USPS to introduce Sparkling Holidays stamps

The Times INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS –
Despite the current heat wave, it's beginning to look like a classic Christmas for the U.S. Postal Service.
This October, the Postal Continue will be in the Service will ring in the 2018 holiday season with four Sparkling Holidays stamps featuring charac-ter-rich close-ups of Santa Claus. The Santa images are from Haddon Sundblom paintings created for The Coca-Cola Company holiday advertisements that ran from the1940s through the early 1960s. Sundb-lom, a famed commercial artist, depicted a rosy-cheeked, smiling, grandfatherly man in a red suit that came to embody the very essence of "Santa."

The Sparkling Holidays stamps will be issued as Forever stamps.

New 'Lamp Law' goes into effect Sunday

INDIANAPOLIS -Sunday, a new Indiana law will go into effect, specifying drivers have only white or amber headlights and red taillights and brake

The Times' newsgathering partner WTHR reported that Gov. Eric Holcomb signed Senate Bill 266, nicknamed the "Lamp Law," March 21. Among other vehicle rules, the law outlines what colors the lights on a vehicle must

Here's a breakdown of the light rules: Headlights must be white or amber. Brake lights must be red. Turn signal lights in the rear must be red or Turn signal lights in the front must be white or amber. This means the blue, green, purple and other colored headlights seen on the road will be in violation. The new law, according to the state police, simplifies the existing one, making it easier for law enforcement to know when there's a violation. Colored halo or ring lights would also violate the law. Other rules included in the law include displaying your license plate horizon tally with the registration per right corner; equipping vehicles made before 1956 with two brake lights; and applying window tints only below the AS-1 line.
